William Wegman's first exhibition at Loom Gallery is a survey of more than forty years of work including photographs and minimal drawings of the 70s and a selection of the unique 20x24 Polaroids for which Wegman, with the collaboration of his Weimaraners, became so well known.

All'inizio degli anni '70, il lavoro di Wegman è stato esposto in musei e gallerie a livello internazionale. Oltre alle mostre personali con la Sonnabend Gallery di Parigi e New York, la Situation Gallery di Londra e Galleria Konrad Fischer di Düsseldorf, il suo lavoro è stato incluso in mostre seminali come "When Attitudes Become Form" e "Documenta 5", e regolarmente presentato sulle riviste Interfunktionen, Artforum e Avalanche.

Il suo lavoro, che comprende fotografia, video, pittura e disegno, è conservato nelle collezioni permanenti del Museum of Modern Art, del Whitney Museum of American Art, dell'Hammer Museum, del Los Angeles County Museum of Art, del Centre Pompidou e dello Smithsonian American Art Museum, tra gli altri.

William Wegman was born in 1943 in Holyoke, Massachusetts. He received a B.F.A. in painting from the Massachusetts College of Art, Boston in 1965 and an M.F.A. in painting from the University of Illinois, Champagne-Urbana in 1967. From 1968 to 1970 he taught at the University of Wisconsin. In the fall of 1970 he moved to Southern California where he taught for one year at California State College, Long Beach. In 1971 He moved to Santa Monica. By the early 70s, Wegman's work was being exhibited in museums and galleries internationally. In addition to solo shows with Sonnabend Gallery in Paris and New York, Situation Gallery in London and Konrad Fisher Gallery in Dusseldorf, his work was included in such seminal exhibitions as "When Attitudes Become Form," at the Kunsthalle Bern in 1969 and "Documenta V" in Kassel in 1972. His work was regularly featured in Interfunktionen, Artforum and Avalanche magazines.

It was while he was in Long Beach that Wegman got his dog, a Weimaraner who he named Man Ray, and began a long and fruitful collaboration. Man Ray, known in the art world and beyond for his endearing deadpan presence, became a central figure in Wegman's photographs and videotapes. When Man Ray died in 1982 he was named "Man of the Year" by the Village Voice.

It was not until 1986 that Wegman got a new dog, Fay Ray, and another collaboration began marked by Wegman's extensive use of the Polaroid 20 x 24 camera. With the birth of Fay's litter in 1989, Wegman's cast of grew to include Fay's offspring — Battina, Crooky and Chundo — and later, their offspring: Battina's son Chip in 1995, Chip's son Bobbin in 1999 and Candy and Bobbin's daughter Penny in 2004. Out of Wegman's involvement with this cast of characters grew a series of childrens' books inspired by the dogs' various acting abilities: Cinderella, Little Red Riding Hood, ABC, Mother Goose, Farm Days, My Town, Surprise Party and Chip Wants a Dog. Wegman has also published a number of books for adults including Man's Best Friend, Fashion Photographs, William Wegman 20 x 24, The New York Times Bestseller Puppies, Fay, William Wegman: Paintings, Being Human, and William Wegman: Writing by Artist edited by Andrew Lampert.

Wegman has created film and video works for Saturday Night Live and Nickelodeon and his video segments for Sesame Street have appeared regularly since 1989. In 1995, Wegman's film The Hardly Boys was screened at the Sundance Film Festival. Wegman has been commissioned to create images for a wide range of projects including a fashion campaign for Acne, banners for the Metropolitan Opera and covers for numerous publications including The New Yorker, Wallpaper and, most recently, French Vogue. Wegman has appeared on The Tonight Show both with Johnny Carson and with Jay Leno, The David Letterman Show and The Colbert Report.

Numerous retrospectives of Wegman's work have toured Europe, Asia and the United States including: "Wegman's World," at the Walker Art Center, Minneapolis in 1981; "William Wegman: Paintings, Drawings, Photographs, Videotapes," which opened at the Kunstmuseum, Lucerne in 1990 and traveled to venues across Europe and the United States including the Centre Pompidou, Paris and The Whitney Museum of American Art, New York; "Funney/Strange" which opened at the Brooklyn Museum of Art in 2006 and made its final stop at the Wexner Center for the Arts, Columbus in the fall of 2007 and "Hello Nature" which opened at the Bowdoin Museum of Art in 2012 and travelled to Artipelag in Stockholm, Sweden. Recent museum exhibitions have included "Before/On/After: William Wegman and California Conceptualism" at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York and "Being Human," a large scale survey of over thirty years of Wegman's photographic work which began a four year international tour after opening at the Rencontres d'Arles in the summer of 2018.
